

From: gldp525

Sent: Sunday, 25 October 2009 7:53 PM

To: Avtar Singh

Subject: Submission on the river redgum report

Submission on the river redgum report

Most of the firewood that I see in woodpiles and on trailers in Wagga Wagga is river redgum, probably logged in the Riverina from a unique ecosystem under environmental stress even without being logged. It is time to put a stop to the logging, particularly for such low-value uses as firewood and railway sleepers. In Wagga Wagga there is a factory that produces concrete sleepers, much more durable than wood.

Yours sincerely,

Louis du Plessis

26/10/2009