Dear Natural Resources Commission,

My name is Susan Peake. I am a teacher and I publish children's books about preserving habitats for wildlife.

I am a passionate believer about the preservation of our natural resources for the future.

I recently visited outback NSW and VIC and have a particular interest in the protection of the River Red Gum Forests.

I believe that the general public needs to be informed about the vulnerable nature of these forests and the wildlife that is already being affected adversely by the destruction of habitat in the forest areas.

I have a large group of friends and associates who are also very concerned about the issue.

Please urgently consider the option to make New National Parks that will protect the forests. This will be the best outcome for the trees, the wildlife, the land, the state, the country and ultimately the planet. The survival of River Red Gum forests and the wildlife that depends on them is in your hands. Please make the right decision.

Sincerely
