

Subject: Red gum forests

To whom it may concern,

The river red gums that are being assessed perform an important role in the health of the Murray river and the ecosystems they harbour. I believe the best thing for the region is to protect these forests from logging and to create national parks. Research has shown that the creation of national parks in NSW will not result in a loss of employment as new jobs will be created.

Kind Regards,
Yuki Schofield